

House Group to Hear Details of Flood Losses

By TEX EASLEY

TULSA, Okla., (AP) — A House Public Works Subcommittee, having completed 1,700 miles in a 45-day aerial inspection of flood-damaged lands in Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas, holds a public hearing today to detail amounts of losses and listen to flood control plans.

Rep. Edmondson (D-Okla.), chairman of today's hearing, urged speed and comprehensive development of river basins as a means of combating floods. The other two members of the group, Reps. Wright (D-Tex.) and Byrne (R-Ill.) voiced similar sentiments.

Edmondson estimated the committee had viewed 1½ million acres of damaged farm and woodlands in the three flood-stricken states. Losses were estimated at about 135 million dollars by Wright.

As the three ended their broad sweep across the once drought-plagued belt, Edmondson made a pledge to fight for more prompt appropriation of money after the flood control projects are authorized by Congress.

Wright, whose district includes flood-torn Fort Worth, said the sight of damaged areas of Oklahoma and Texas "points up the need for reducing the lag between congressional authorization of an engineering survey and final completion of a project."

Byrne said last night at a dinner.

"I saw so much dam water today I got sea sick. I also saw enough flood damage to tell the members of Congress that people in the Southwest need immediate relief."

Edmondson said construction of the proposed Markham Ferry, Oologah and Keystone reservoirs would have cut by more than 50 per cent the damage wrought by the rampaging Arkansas River.

Anderson to Take Over a Hot Spot

By HARRY VANDERNOOT

WASHINGTON, UP — Robert B. Anderson, new bright young man of the Eisenhower administration, will step into the hottest spot in government when he takes over as secretary of the Treasury. He will succeed George M. Humphrey in the midst of one of the hottest budget fights in recent years and at a time when the national debt, and the interest on it, is threatening to run out of bounds.

That presumably is the reason Humphrey agreed to stay on while Anderson was getting settled.

Anderson certainly must be aware that he must help President Eisenhower hold the line against congressional moves to make serious cuts in the administration's record peacetime budget of $71,800,000,000 for fiscal 1958. Ironically, Humphrey is said by many to virtually have invited the budget-cutting spree when he brought a hair-curling expression some years hence if government expenditures were not reduced.

His appointment was seen as a move toward greater harmony between the administration and Capitol Hill. His nomination last Wednesday was hailed by Democrats and Republicans alike. A transplanted Texan, Anderson counts as among his closest friends in Washington Speaker Sam Rayburn and Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson, both of Texas.

There also was belief in some congressional circles that he will be more liberal in his budget views than Humphrey — especially on defense expenditures.

Deaths on Highways Some Lower

CHICAGO (AP)—Death on the nation's highways in the first four months of 1957 ran slightly behind fatalities for the same period last year, the National Safety Council said today.

The council said 11,250 persons died in traffic mishaps from January through April 1957, a drop of 3 per cent from the 11,560 deaths reported in the first four months of 1956.

The council said the 1956 total death toll of 40,000 was 31 more than the previous high, set in 1941. Comparative figures show the traffic death rate accelerated in the last eight months of 1956. April was the fifth month in a row, the council said, in which deaths have been the same or fewer than during the same month a year earlier. There were 2,930 April traffic deaths in both 1956 and this year.

Twenty-nine states showed decreases in the death toll in the first four months, 17 had increases and 2 reported no change. The three states with the biggest percentage decrease were: Massachusetts, 30 per cent; Idaho, 28, and Nebraska, 20.

Texoma Far Above Normal Stage

TULSA, Okla., (AP)—Army engineers today said rainfall over Denison Reservoir within the last 24 hours has started Lake Texoma rising again. The lake crested at 940.95 feet in the middle of the week.

Col. John D. Bristol, district engineer in Tulsa, predicted the lake would reach an elevation of 641 feet sometime Saturday.

Bristol said the lake level should drop back to the spillway elevation of 640 about Tuesday unless heavy rains fall over the lake.

Army engineers have controlled closely releases from the big project in order to protect cities downstream. No floodwater releases have reached Fulton, Ark., although they are expected to reach there sometime tonight.

At 6 a. m. today releases were 30,800 cubic feet per second on flood control and 4,579 cubic feet per second for power.

At that time the lake level was 640.8 feet. It is expected to rise about one tenth of one foot by tomorrow morning and reach 641 feet late tomorrow afternoon.

He was one of the first pastors of the Tabernacle having served from 1939 to 1950.

Mrs. Webb and their daughter, Sue, have been in town for the past week and will remain through next week while Mrs. Webb is the principal of the Vacation Bible School being conducted at the church each morning from 8:30 to 11:30 a. m.

Rainstorms Hit Texas, Spawning Flood Threats

DALLAS (AP)—Rains of up to 11 inches, flooded portions of Texas impatiently for thousands of acres of land to dry as violent weather continued in Texas.

The Midland, Tex., Weather Bureau said a tornado was sighted a few miles west of Big Spring in West Texas, but it caused no damage.

More than 11 inches of rain fell in three hours in south Texas between Uvalde and Lamy, causing flash flooding. More than three inches fell at Kingsville, also in south Texas, and one inch fell in 20 minutes at Big Spring, flooding streets, Lubbock, Amarillo, Plainview and Sherman were raked by storms.

The rains have prevented harvesting and were believed to have placed south plains wheat crops in jeopardy. Cotton crops in Hale, Floyd and Swisher counties, just south of the Panhandle, were far behind in planting.

A flash flood covered the heart of Bracketville, a ranch center of 1,800 about 125 miles west of San Antonio, under 18 inches of water. The town had about 5 inches of rain.

Two 14-year-old Arlington boys, Don Jacobs and Lawrence Thompson, were killed by lightning that struck their motor scooter near their home between Fort Worth and Dallas.

In north central Texas, the State Highway Patrol said an 80-foot section of a concrete bridge across Clear Creek was washed out.

The Red Cross said yesterday that 36,224 Texans were directly affected by tornadoes and floods during April and May, not counting Thursday or Friday's victims. At least 745 homes and 384 farm buildings were destroyed and 197 other buildings flattened. Deaths blamed on violent weather totaled 52.

Tornado damage in Texas since the first of the year was estimated at $14,585,175 by the state civil defense office.

To Probe Air Buying on Installments

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Senate subcommittee has summoned senior Pentagon officials next Tuesday to explain a recent Defense Department crackdown on installment buying by the Air Force.

Deputy Secretary of Defense Donald A. Quarles and Assistant Secretary of Defense Wilson and dated May 11 could hold up Air Force schedules for more than 3½ billion dollars worth of equipment.

Symington said today he understands that "a formal protest" against the directive has been filed by Secretary of the Air Force James H. Douglas.

"I'm glad to see that he is protesting again," Symington told a newsman, "I believe that Congress will become increasingly aware of this effort to thwart its decisions with regard to appropriations by bookkeeping manipulations."

Symington contends that the directive would prevent the Air Force from using funds Congress voted in past years but which are not yet formally obligated.

The two Defense Department officials are expected to tell the Senate group that the directive was issued to meet objections by Rep. Mahon (D-Tex.) to what he termed an Air Force practice of "over-programming" in requesting appropriations. The House Appropriations Committee, in submitting a reduced defense appropriations bill, to Congress, criticized the practice.

Mahon, head of a subcommittee which handled the defense budget in the House, also wrote Wilson, asking what the Pentagon could or would do to bring the Air Force into line.

After drafting his directive, Wilson sent a copy of it to Mahon with a note pointing out what the Pentagon had done.

The directive reminded the military services of the existing laws and regulations on procurement.

Secretaries of the Army, Navy and the Air Force were given a change to comment on it. Only the Air Force raised objections.

Springdale to Get New Poultry Plant

SPRINGDALE, (AP)—Edward Aaron Corp. of Arkansas City will construct a $300,000 poultry processing plant here soon. It was announced today.

Tombstones Found on a Parking Lot

MYTHEVILLE, (AP)—The discovery of two tombstones and a part of another has delayed opening of a parking lot here.

The tombstones were uncovered when an old machine shop was torn down to make way for the parking lot planned by Henry Westbrook.

One tombstone is inscribed: "Tom Williams, died March 15, 1914, age 74." Another bears the inscription: "Williams, Stephen, died 1913, age 23."

No inscription was found on the tombstone fragment also found.

Although no record of a cemetery at the location has been found, Westbrook said today he does not intend to have a parking lot "over bodies."

The old machine shop building was constructed in the late 1920s, he said.

Westbrook, who has built a new machine shop adjacent to the property, said he hopes to locate the Williams family to clear up the mystery.

Husband Of Actress Is Found Guilty

By JAMES LEE

WASHINGTON (INS)—Playwright Arthur Miller, husband of Marilyn Monroe, was found guilty today on two counts of contempt of Congress.

The prize-winning dramatist faces a possible penalty of a year in prison and $1,000 fine on each count.

Miller was convicted by Federal Judge Charles F. McLaughlin, who sat without a jury at the trial of the famed writer on charges that he was in contempt for refusing to give the House Un-American Activities committee the names of persons who attended alleged Communist group meetings.

The jurist withheld pronouncement of sentence pending a decision on a request by Miller's attorney for special findings on rules of criminal procedure.

In his appearance before the committee, Miller asserted that his conscience forbade him to divulge the names of fellow writers with whom he was once associated in organizations linked to Communist activities.

This trial, his attorneys maintained, was based on "fabrication" designed to mask publicity-seeking motives of congressmen.

Miller admitted association with some Communist front organizations but refused to name persons he knew on grounds that he could not injure someone else.

The judge said, in his ruling: "However commendable may be regarded the motive of the defendant in refusing to disclose the identity, or the official position of another with whom he was in association, lest said disclosure, 'might bring trouble on him,' that motive and that refusal have been removed from this court's consideration."

Ft. Smith Board to Vote on Integration

Fort Smith School Board is expected to vote June 24 on a motion to put racial integration for public schools in effect next September.

At a meeting this week, the board received a motion to start the plan when the 1957-58 school term began. However, no vote was taken because of the absence of two board members.

The integration plan was adopted in July, 1956. It provides that first grade students would be rolled without regard to the race. Each year thereafter, the first grade would take in students on an integrated basis with previous integrated classes progressing through the higher grades.

The plan would divide Fort Smith into districts. A pupil living in one district could attend school in another if his race was in the minority in his own district. Any child could go outside his district to attend a segregated school.

Supt. Chris Corbin said the plan would affect "about the same number of white students."

One Memorial Day Fatality in State

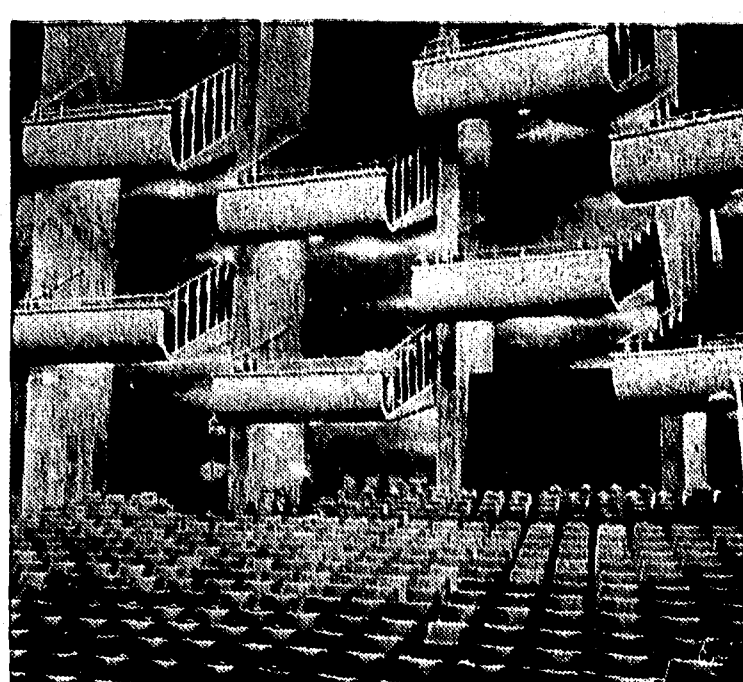

In a house fire of an 18-month-old Negro girl near Scott was the only reported Arkansas Memorial Day fatality.

The child, Annie Belle Hatton, died in the blaze which broke out in a small home on a plantation near this central Arkansas town yesterday.

Authorities said it was believed the fire may have been caused by defective electrical wiring.

Three other children in the blazing home escaped. The mother had gone to a store, leaving the children alone.

Parents of the fire victim are Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Hatton, called strategic goods.

Others to Trade With Red China

By JAMES MARLOW

Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—The British joined this government with the announcement yesterday they were lifting the ban on around 200 items their businessmen could sell to the Red Chinese.

Some easing of restrictions was expected. The jolt was in the amount. Japan and other American allies no doubt will follow the British. The United States will continue its flat ban on any American trade with the Chinese Communists.

Before the Korean War, the United States and its allies agreed not to sell Russia or the Soviet bloc strategic materials — materials the Communists could use for building up their "warming power." That ban still stands.

In 1951, during the Korean war, the United States and Britain, plus most of their West European allies and Japan, also agreed not to sell any strategic materials to Red China.

But they put wider restrictions on Red China than on Russia. They agreed not to sell the Chinese Communist items that would be used to build up their industrial programs. For example: locomotives, tractors and the like.

When the Korean War ended, the British, anxious to boost their trade and their economy, began to press for eased restrictions on Red China trade. They've applied pressure for three years. This is one of their arguments.

It's all right to retain the ban on strategic materials. It's a farce to sell non-strategic items, like tractors, to Russia but not to Red China. If Russia can buy them, the Chinese can buy them from Russia.

Meanwhile, the British have been selling the Chinese Communist consumer goods like chemicals, wools and certain electrical appliances, such as X-ray equipment. In return they get dried eggs, tea and textile yarns.

But Japan also has strong economic reasons for wanting some of the Red China trade restrictions lifted. For example: Japan has a steel shortage which puts heavy inflationary pressure on its economy.

Red China reportedly has refused to help Japan ease the steel shortage — by selling it iron ore — until Japan sells embargoed heavy machinery and ships needed in Red China's industrial program.

So the Eisenhower administration was in a squeeze: between Allied pressure to ease up on the trade bans and pressure from Congress to maintain the highest possible restrictions in all free world trade with Red China.

President Eisenhower and British Prime Minister Macmillan talked about it at their Bermuda meeting in March. Macmillan went home and told the British they had reached no agreement.

Nevertheless, on April 20 the Eisenhower administration announced it had agreed to negotiate with its allies on reducing the number of items banned from sale to Red China.

But — while the administration was willing to talk of easing some restrictions on Red China trade, it wanted its allies to agree to tighten up on what they'd sell to Russia. Talks were held in Paris.

Yesterday the British apparently went far beyond what the State Department had in mind about easing some restrictions on trade with Red China.

Now the Chinese Communists can buy from the British tractors, trucks, locomotives, small electric generators and a wide range of other goods which can be used in developing Red China's industry.

This will not include so-called strategic goods.

Ship Carrying Americans Nears Formosa

TAIPEI (AP)—A naval transport neared Formosa today with 1,057 U. S. military personnel and dependents, and Premier O. K. Yui said conditions in Taipei were practically back to normal after the anti-American riots a week ago.

The Hugh J. Gaffey was due at Keelung tomorrow with the additions to the contingent of about 10,000 Americans already on Formosa. The transport will take home 247 military personnel and dependents being reassigned.

Yui assured Americans and other foreigners "that it is now safe for them to go about as before, not only in Taipei but throughout the island."

Americans were circulating more freely today, but military personnel still were under orders to stay out of all Chinese establishments except official premises. Enlisted men off duty still were ordered to be indoors by 9 p. m.

Yui said more of the troops rushed to Taipei after the riots began had been withdrawn. But he added that "from now on we shall maintain sufficient military and police strength in and around Taipei to insure full security for residents."

Increase in Crude Oil Price Asked

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Independent Petroleum Association of America today called for a 4-cent-a-barrel increase in Crude Oil prices in the wake of a 6 per cent wage raise being granted generally in the oil industry.

The present average U. S. wholesale price is $3.17.

Costs in other business, cannot continue to go up while prices remain unchanged," Robert L. Wood, association president, said. The IPAA represents 12,000 domestic oil and natural gas producers.

The Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union (AFL-CIO) is currently signing contracts under which its 100,000 field and refinery workers are receiving an 18-cent-an-hour package wage increase. This includes new fringe benefits. The employees also are granting the same hikes to so-called company and private unions. Ultimately more than 300,000 workers will benefit.

Says State Water Projects to Be Okay

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Norrell (D-Ark.) said today he is of the opinion that Arkansas water projects will fare "all right" at the hands of a House Appropriations subcommittee now in final stages of approving a bill carrying funds for such projects.

Norrell is a member of the Appropriations Committee but is not on the subcommittee.

"My information is that we are cut much — although there may be some cuts," Norrell did not discuss individual projects.

He said his opinion is that the subcommittee will not give any project more than the budget recommended and that no project not in the budget has much chance of getting funds.

The subcommittee, which is expected to complete its work in a week or so, has made no announcement of any actions taken.

Auto Accident at Fulton Claims Third Victim

A two-car accident about 1:15 p. m. Friday at the Fulton River bridge claimed another victim later in the afternoon bringing to three the number killed and five others were injured, one critically.

Patsy Joy Ward, 11, of Palestine, Texas and Marcus E. Brotherton, 41, of Houston, Texas were killed instantly in the accident. Brotherton's mother, Mrs. Luther D. Brotherton, 62, also of Houston, died in a Hope hospital about five hours after the wreck.

Mrs. Vivian Watts, 15, Palestine, sustained head and chest injuries, a fractured jaw and lacerations. She was brought to a Hope hospital and later transferred to a Texarkana hospital. Her condition at 8 a. m. Saturday was reported critical but somewhat better.

Less seriously injured were Luther D. Brotherton 66, and Mrs. Marcus Brotherton, 41. Both suffered chest injuries. In the second auto Mrs. Watts' brother, Thomas Lloyd Ward, 6, and her husband Ralph Watts, 10, were treated in a local hospital for minor injuries and released.

Investigating State Police said the Brotherton auto was going east and the Watt car traveling west. They said Brotherton apparently lost control and skidded into the path of Watts' car.

The Brotherton family was enroute to Blevins to visit Hap Brotherton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Brotherton. The Watts family was returning to Palestine after visiting relatives in Hope.

Could Delay Action on Foreign Aid

WASHINGTON (UP)—Sen. Charles E. Potter (R-Mich.) said today that congressional passage of President Eisenhower's foreign aid program may "possibly" be hampered by Britain's decision to increase its trade with Red China.

Potter, a member of the Interstate and Foreign Commerce committee, called the British action "regrettable." But it comes as no surprise, he said, "because pressures have been building up for an increase in such trade."

Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland (Calif.) has vigorously opposed increased trade with Red China on the ground that it would increase her war-making capabilities.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.), a member of the Foreign Relations committee, said, however, that "if the disarmament issue with the Communists is being taken seriously, why not the trade issue?"

Humphrey said Britain "has been pushed very hard financially" and that the move had been expected all along.

However, Sen. George M. Smith (D-Ill.), also a member of the Foreign Relations committee, is reported to be ready to urge that the United States itself begin trading with Communist China.

Madison Farmer Shot by Wife

HUNTSVILLE, Ark. (AP) A 44-year-old Madison County farmer was shot to death at his home 15 miles northeast of here late yesterday, Coroner Charles Beby said.

Beby said John Mulkey Anderson was struck twice once in the shoulder and once in the chest, by .22 caliber pistol bullets.

The coroner quoted Mrs. Floria Anderson, 44, as saying her husband struck her with a board after accusing her of having "another man in the house," and that she shot him in self defense.

No charge had been filed today.

U. S. Reducing Size of Army Overseas

B. C. YATES MODANIEL

WASHINGTON, Mo.—The United States has been quietly reducing the size of its military missions overseas. The cutback was ordered earlier this year, primarily for economy.

With a secondary factor in the decision to bring home about 12 per cent of the military men attached to foreign advisory and training missions was the growing realization that large groups of Americans living abroad lead to tensions of the sort that produced the anti-American rioting in Formosa last week.

One of the major tension-producing factors is believed to be the high American living standard.

The gradual reduction of military missions staffs was well under way when Secretary of Defense Wilson told a Senate committee this week that he was seeking a 12 per cent reduction in such personnel.

At the beginning of this year the total authorized strength of the U. S. military aid missions was 7,400. By March 31, the last reporting date available, the number had dropped to 7,021.

Even before the Formosa imbroglio, the American Embassy in Taipei had been called for Formosa to take the heaviest percentage cut.

The mission there has an authorized strength of 2,636. The number had dropped to 2,116 by March 31 and Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, Army chief of staff, told legislators on the morning after the Taipei outbreak that the decision already had been reached to reduce the mission to 1,233 after July 1.

Table Rock Is Worth Every Cent It Cost

By C. W. JOHNSON
Springfield Leader and Press

BRANSON, Mo., Mo.—The price tag on giant Table Rock dam, now 70 per cent finished, is $72,000,000 but ask anyone living in the White River valley below the barrier and he'll tell you the dam already has paid for itself.

Not only has the Army Corps of Engineers had an idea there Engineers had an idea there would be any water behind the dam until the gates were closed now after weeks and weeks of almost steady rainfall, Table Rock Lake probably contains as much water as it was designed to impound.

Had it not been for the dam, the White River valley would have suffered its worst flood in history this spring. It could well be that the cities of Branson and Hollister, immediately below the dam, and all the resort area stretching along Lake Taneycomo would today be a shambles, were it not for the dam.

As the 261-foot high concrete wall across the river commenced to take form, all that was left open at the river floor were the flood gates, large enough to accommodate a normal flow of water, plus an occasional "high water," such as has been experienced in the preceding five years of drought.

But along in February it began to rain in the Ozarks of Missouri and Arkansas—and seemingly it has been raining almost every day since. For a time the flood gates were large enough to take the rush of water gradually began backing up behind the dam.

Through March and April the water mounted steadily higher, and the contractors—Morrison-Landmark Inc.—and syndicate of six other firms took advantage of the inevitable break in the weather to round the concrete monolith over winter. Once in really May, it appeared that the flood threat had been averted when 18 feet of concrete in a narrow gap was poured in a week's time—enough to keep ahead of the flood crest by a scant four inches.

More rains came in mid-May, however, and the contractors found it impossible to keep ahead of the rising tide. On May 25 the water began flowing across the top of the dam, and by the time the flood had reached its crest, on May 28, water to a depth of seven feet was churning through the narrow flood gap.

Had it not been for the dam, continued as it is, the White River valley for many miles downstream would have been hit by the worst flood in history. As it turned out, the Taneycomo and Bull Shoals Lake downstream, have a good well able to absorb the excessive flow.

Table Rock dam, 27 years in the planning stage, didn't actually begin to take form until late in 1954. When it is completed in the spring of 1958 it will be a concrete and masonry wall stretching 6,400 feet across the valley. Behind it will be a lake covering 52,000 acres with a shoreline of 857 miles, most of it in Stone County, Missouri, but with farms reaching into Barry and Taney Counties in Missouri and into Carroll and Boone Counties in Arkansas.

Of course that means that the present high water will drain out of the lake, at least so that work can proceed with two bridges crossing arms of the lake and so that trees and underbrush can be cleared out.

At the start of this month's high water, the level had risen 4 feet, 8 inches, above sea level. Eventually top elevation of the dam's flood control pool is to be 921 feet.

DOROTHY DIX

Parents Killed Romance and Now They're Sorry

Dear Dorothy Dix: When our son was 16, he fell in love with a sweet girl who had everything—beauty, intelligence, personality and talent. However, I kept a firm hand on the boy. He was permitted to date her rarely, and we assumed a coldly cordial attitude toward her.

My son is now in college and has gotten in with an older crowd. The girl he now dates is four years his senior, quite homely, sloppy, cold and reserved. We're very unhappy about this, but since we made a mistake once, we don't know what to do.

B. H.
Dear B. H.: If any of us had foresight to equal our hindsight, we'd never make mistakes. We do at any given time what we think is best for those we love. The best we can do is make a decision with a prayer that it is for the best. When it isn't, we still have prayer to correct the wrong.

Don't blame yourself for the boy's change of heart; it might have happened anyway. Talk sense to him if he'll listen, but don't force advice on him. Enlist the cooperation of his friends to point up the new girl's anti-social habits. The scales will undoubtedly balance again. Until then, your role is to sit and wait.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I'd like to meet a refined lady in her 60's. I've been a widower for five years. Will you please send me any letters you receive?

J. M.
Dear J. M.: An eligible man of 60? You're every widow's dream. Why must you write to me to find a lonesome lady? I'm sure there are plenty of them in your community or in your circle of friends—no matter how limited it is. Look around for yourself.

Dear Dorothy Dix: My son, a fine ambitious young man, is engaged to a girl who doesn't have the makings of a homemaker. She spends money in a beauty parlor getting her hair dyed and seems lazy and selfish. Is there any chance of such a marriage succeeding?

WORRIED
Dear Worried: The prospective bride may not have the makings of a homemaker, but you most assuredly have the makings of a home wrecker. You are drawing doubtful conclusions from insufficient evidence. Simmer down, lady, while everyone can still be friends.

Dear Dorothy Dix: Should I ask the boy I date if he's married or do you think it would be nice? I've had experience with boy friends who didn't tell me they were married.

DAISY
Dear Daisy: This question should be asked before you reach the first stage of any romance.

Lost of the Flying Sergeants Lost

MOBILE, Ala.—The Air Force loses the last of its flying sergeants today when M. Sgt. George Holmes retires.

Holmes, 59, was one of 55 enlisted men authorized to pilot military planes in 1945. The War Department eventually stopped giving commissioned officers's flight training, and the number of flying sergeants gradually diminished.

Holmes had more than 9,000 hours of flying time.

Turkey had the worst drought in 26 years in 1956.

The present high water will drain out of the lake, at least so that work can proceed with two bridges crossing arms of the lake and so that trees and underbrush can be cleared out.

Evangelist Startles Three Girls

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK, N. Y.—They joked about it. They thought it would be an amusing spectacle. It was sort of an office gag when they decided to go hear Billy Graham.

They were startled by what happened to them. It was so completely unforeseen when the three girls left work at a Manhattan business machines sales office to go to Madison Square Garden.

"I had just wanted to see what he looked like," said blonde Janet Puckhaber, 25.

"We thought there would be a lot of mass emotion, like clashing cymbals," said brunette Sallie Armit, 22.

"We were just curious," said red-haired Patty McClain, 21.

There were 17,500 people in the Garden last night, the 16th day of Graham's massive crusade. At his closing appeal to "give your life to Christ," 178 came forward.

Among them were the three girls, their faces somber. Down from a balcony they came and up the long aisle to the front. They stood, heads bowed, as Graham said gently:

"Jesus receives you. He loves you. He wanted you."

What had come over the three girls? What had moved them and changed their attitude from one of curious skepticism to a willingness to make a public profession of Christ? None had ever done so before.

It was something that is happening to hundreds nightly at Graham's meetings, and the girls' experience is part of the story of how it happens.

"It was peculiar," Miss Puckhaber said. "It's hard to explain. It's not like I thought it would be at all. I think everybody wants to have a good life. The idea must be there in the first place. But he gets you to wondering if you can do it."

"I felt funny. I wanted to go, but I just sat there. I kept saying to myself, 'Please, I want to go—something please send me. I felt silly.'"

"I didn't go until the last minute. Then I was scared. I was wondering what was going to happen. I certainly was not in a trance. I just decided that I wanted to do it—that it was an opportunity."

Hays Has a Deep Interest in Religion

CHICAGO, Ill.—Rep. Brooks Hays D-Ark., newly elected president of the Southern Baptist Convention, is a congressman who has a deep interest in religion.

Some of his colleagues address him—and not in a sarcastic vein—as "Reverend Hays."

The election of Hays yesterday was the first such honor given to a layman in 12 years.

Hays has taken an active part in church work since 1925, when he began teaching a Sunday school class of young men at Little Rock's Second Baptist Church. His old class now is called the "Brooks Hays Bible Class."

The Little Rock lawmaker's principal interests in Congress have been foreign relations and development of Arkansas water projects.

Hays has a ready wit and once came up with a description of Texas which is a minor classic of "hard Texas" rallery.

He referred to the "Lone Star State as 'outer Arkansas.'"

Juarez Students Also Are Rioting

JUAREZ, Mexico, Jan.—Juarez officials sought federal help today in the wake of a riot by hundreds of Juarez Agricultural College students.

Joe Demie, reporter for the El Paso, Tex., Times, said the students had barricaded streets.

wrecked automobiles and attacked the residence with bricks and stones.

Manuel Alcaraz, mayor pro tem, charged that the student riots were Communist inspired.

"We are appealing for any help," he said.

The 60-year-old school has been strikebound for 27 days, as 1,230 students have refused to return to classes. They wanted federal control of the privately owned institution.

Police said the disorders yesterday were touched off when a relative of a school official fired a pistol as students surrounded his automobile. There were no reports of injuries.

Student leaders denied any Communist ties.

Demie said riot leaders told him: "What we're after is decent living conditions, better instruction and better schools."

The first railroad diner service was on the Pennsylvania Railroad in a baggage car in 1862. It served only oyster stew, doughnuts and coffee.

The advertiser's highest standard—of circulation value

Every industry has a standard by which its products can be measured.

The jeweler uses the symbol of a pure diamond. In flatware, the word "sterling," and in dinnerware, the word "bone china," represent high standards of quality and value.

For the advertiser, the symbol of the highest standard of circulation value is the emblem of the Audit Bureau of Circulations. This hallmark means that newspapers or periodicals so identified are measured according to the most highly regarded rules and standards in the advertising and publishing industry.

The fact that we are privileged to display this A.B.C. emblem here means that you can buy advertising in this newspaper as you would make any other sound business investment—on the basis of well known standards, known values.

This newspaper is a member of the Audit Bureau of Circulations, a non-profit, non-partisan, non-sectarian, non-political association of publishers, advertisers, and advertising agencies. Its circulation is audited by experienced A.B.C. auditing agencies. Our A.B.C. report shows how much circulation we have, where it comes, how obtained, and other facts that tell advertisers what they get for their money when they use this paper.

News Briefs

ROME, (UP) — Travel in the Holy Land is as safe as it ever was despite current unrest in the Middle East, an American Roman Catholic priest said here today.

The Rev. Pius Barth, overseer of the Franciscan Middle West province, arrived here yesterday from an inspection tour of the area's shrines and holy sites.

Father Barth, who makes his headquarters at the Saint Anthony Friary in St. Louis, Mo., said little of the Middle East tensions which have rubbed off on the Holy places. Pilgrims can move about with relative freedom and security.

He said the most disturbing result of the tensions has been the almost total lack of pilgrims in the last eight months and the resulting economic strangulation of Holy Land sites.

From a tourist point of view, the only problems are some minor border and photographic restrictions and the closing of roads like Christ's road to Jericho to non-military traffic, he said.

TAIPEI, (UP) — Communist
Chinese artillery fired 482 rounds at the Nationalist offshore islands of Quemoy and Little Quemoy yesterday, killing one Nationalist Chinese soldier.

A defense ministry communique said the casualty was the first this year.

LONDON, (UP) — A delegation of American restaurant and snackbar owners arrived in Moscow yesterday from a two-week tour of Russia to study Soviet food serving techniques, Moscow radio reported today. There was something about him that made me feel alive.

"A sense of violence," I suggested.

"Perhaps," she said with a shrug. "I didn't stop to think.
When he suggested that we work together. I found the idea attractive. And then suddenly I was living again, it was almost like the old days. Can you understand that,
Milo?"

I nodded.

"The other day, in your room, I thought perhaps it was over. And this afternoon, I knew that you would come for me — that was why I made Johnny drive me back here immediately — and in a way
I was glad."

I understood that, too, I think I understood the whole thing very well. Her world had trained her to kill and had made her a perfect machine at it. Then it had suddenly told her to stop, but that was the only thing she knew.
She'd had to start again, but it hadn't been the same thing and she hadn't been happy at it. She had been destined never to be approached again the day that her function was no longer needed. And probably that day something had snapped inside her.

"Johnny Forrester gave you part of the money?" I asked.

"Yes," she said, "but it's all in the bank. I never spent any of it."

"What about Anna Marai Peri-coloso?" I asked gently.

"We were at the baron's," she said. "Johnny came and told me that it had to be done, and that it must look like an accident. He said that the girl knew things about them all and was going to tell the police because Riccardo no longer loved her. She was asleep in her room. I think she had been drugged — and I did not hurt her at all. Later, Johnny and the baron and Riccardo took her down to the beach."

HORNS OF A DILEMMA—This adventurous goat had no trouble hording in on what probably seemed to be greener pastures on the other side of fence of a farm in Dixon, Mo. His trouble came when he tried to get his head back in his own back yard. Each time, the horns became caught on the wire, and the fence really got his "goat" until help arrived.

LEARNING TO WALK—Stricken three months ago with a brain condition that caused complete paralysis, Toy, a five-month-old Pekinese, is learning to walk again in this special hammock rigged by a St. Joseph, Mo., veterinarian. The special rig allows Toy to use his muscles. Thanks to the hammock, rub-downs and medical attention, the pet is expected to lead a normal dog's life eventually.

CHAPTER XXXV

"It was terrible after the war," she said as though she knew the question in my mind. "Suddenly I was nobody and I had nothing to do. I tried to work, but that was no good. I couldn't sleep at nights."

"But I worked at jobs because I have to live," she said. "And I would come home at night and play with the knives. It was the only time I felt alive. Then two years ago, I got the job with Signor Manzo. At about the same time I met Johnny Forrester. I did not fall in love with him, or even like him, yet I found it exciting to be around him. There was something about him that made me feel alive."

"A sense of violence," I suggested.

"Perhaps," she said with a shrug. "I didn't stop to think. When he suggested that we work together. I found the idea attractive. And then suddenly I was living again, it was almost like the old days. Can you understand that, Milo?"

CHAPTER XXXVI

"How are you?" I asked Piero over the phone.

He groaned. "I am all head and no brains," he said. "Fortunately there is little to do today. There are now only details and others can do those just as well. Incidentally, I don't think Signorina Pianta will even go to trial. She has been examined and the recommendation is that she be sent to an institution."

"Good," I said. "Come and drive me somewhere."

"I will be right there," he said. I hung up and packed my clothes. Then I went downstairs and checked out, arranging for my luggage to be sent to the airport. I waited in the lobby for Piero.

"Signor March," the clerk called over to me while I was waiting. "There is Signor Blaine on the phone from the American Em- bassy. He wishes to talk to you."

"Tell him I'll send him a post- card from New York," I said.

In a few minutes I saw Piero drive up in front of the hotel. I went out and got into the car beside him. He grinned at me. "Have you seen the papers?" he asked.

"No," I said. I had deliberately not looked at any of them.

"There's one there on the back seat. Take a look."

I twisted around and looked at the paper. There were several headlines. One said: SON OF MINISTER OF INTERIOR DIES A HERO. Another announced the arrest of Baron Gambero. The third said: DETECTIVE BREAKS UP MURDER AND DRUG RING WITH AID OF AMERICAN.

"It's a little wrong," Piero said, "but I thought you ought to have some of the credit."

"Big of you," I grunted. "Re- mind me not to put you on the expense account the next time."

I told him to take me down to see Achilles. Within a half hour he was parking across the street from the wine shop.

"I'll be back in a minute," I said. "By the way, did you get Johnny Forrester?"

"We got him. And I'm sure the insurance ring business will take care of him."

"Good," I said. I crossed the street and went up the stairs. I walked back to the last door and knocked.

"Avanti," the voice said.

I opened the door and walked in. Achilles sat on his bed, honing that knife again.

"You came," he said.

"I told you I would," I said. "The killer of your brother is caught."

He looked disappointed. "You did not let me get to him."

"It was not a him, but a her. She was very sick in the head, Achilles, and she is being sent away. She killed your brother because a man told her to and that man will go to prison. It is better this way."

"If you say so," he said.

"I have come to offer you a trade," I said.

"What is it?"

"The chance to become a man who sells information on even a bigger scale than your brother did."

"How is that?"

"In a way that is what I do," I said. "I came here working for an American insurance company. They will soon need someone here in Rome who will collect infor- mation and sell it only to them. You can be that man. You will go to work for them now and learn about the business. Then in about a year, you can be trained for the job of getting information. Perhaps I will even come over and train you myself."

"Truly?"

"Truly. And you will be paid money every week even while you are training. Do you think you might like that?"

"It is wonderful," he said. He grew thoughtful. "But you men- tioned a trade. What is it you want from me for this?"

"The knife," I said, holding out my hand. "You will not need it in this job. You will learn how to use your brains which are much sharper than any knife."

He hesitated a minute, then he reached out and placed the knife in my hand.

"If you say so," he said.

"You go to Intercontinental In- surance today and see Luigi Man- zo," I said. I gave him the ad- dress. "He is expecting you. I am going back to America, but perhaps I will see you in about a year. A rivederci!"

"A rivederci!" he said. He looked as if he were going to say more.

"There should be no thanks," I said. I walked out and went back to the car. Piero grinned at me. "Did you get him fixed up?" he asked.

"Yes," I said. I tossed the knife down on the seat beside him. "You can add this to your collection. It hasn't killed anyone and now it won't. Now you may take me to the airport, my good man."

Piero walked with me to the gate at the airport. "Look at my coat, unbuttoned like the master hunter," he said. "And the gun."

"Thanks," I told him. "I saved

Honduran Envoy to Seek Presidency

ANTIGUA, Guatemala (AP) — Dr. Ramon Villeda Morales, Honduran ambassador to the United States, says he plans to run again for president.

Villeda Morales, head of Hon- duras' Liberal party, said last night he will go to Tegucigalpa to prepare his campaign. He said he would first seek a seat in the Con- stituent Assembly "if my party launches me and afterward as candidate for presidency of the republic."

The election of the assembly is scheduled for Sept. 21. The assem- bly is to make preparations for the voting.

Villeda Morales won the most votes for the presidency in the 1944 election but failed to gain the required margin over two rival candidates. Honduras has been ruled by a three-man military junta since last October, when Acting President Julio Lozano was forced out of office.

Villeda Morales was here as spokesman for Honduras in un- successful boundary negotiations with Nicaragua.

Housewives Lunch Political Drive

B. RICHARD E. BOYD

BUFFALO, West Va. (AP) — Buffalo housewives, aided by home — not all — of their hus- bands are on the warpath with a full slate of female nominees against perennial male officeholders.

"The weeds are over our heads, sidewalks all broken — things are terrible," says Mrs. Norma Warner, who heads the state of nominees opposing the administration of Mayor Vernon D. Pigg.

"All we want to do is make Buffalo a better place to live," she said.

"Last time there was sup- posed to be an election they just got together and appointed each other."

She couldn't recall when that was but Pigg admits candidly "it's been about 10 years."

Pigg, a garage operator, stopped at this 120-year-old Kanawha Valley town (pop. 368) on a "fishin' vacation" 17 years ago to work in her bro- ther's and just stayed."

Mrs. Warner, also a compara- tive newcomer, arrived 20 years ago to work to her brother's "largest general de- partment store east of the Missis- sippi, everything from a needle to a sawmill."

She married Clare Warner, 17 years ago and they have a 12- year-old son.

"He'll probably be police chief," says Pigg, but he grins when he says it. This is a "family fight," seemingly with- out a basis for rancor.

Among the five women for Council is Miss Caroline Fra- zier, a retired school teacher confined to a wheel chair.

She names among planks in the women's platform: better fire protection, natural gas service, and reduced water rates.

"We're letting them the male office seekers do all the talking," says Mrs. Warner. "At last, they're really talk- ing it up, I tell you."

Hungarians Ordered Out of United States

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has ordered an assistant military attache at the Hungarian legation to leave the country by Monday, apparently in retaliation for a similar action by Com- munist Hungary last month.

The State Department yesterday declared the presence of Lt. Karoly Meszaros no longer agreeable to the United States government. It gave no reason for the decision.

Last month, the Soviet satellite government in Budapest accused Capt. Thomas T. Gleason of espionage and gave him 48 hours to get out of Hungary. Gleason was assistant U. S. military attache there.

Master Sgt. Edward Martin, sta- tioned at Fort Monmouth, N. J., recently reemployed in the U. S. Army at the age of 74.

2.3 Million on U. S. Payrolls in April

WASHINGTON (AP) The govern- ment had 2,395,764 civilian em- ployees on its payrolls in April a net increase of 2,777 over the March total.

This was reported today by Sen. Byrd (D-Va), chairman of the Senate House Committee on Re- duction of Nonessential Federal Expenditures.

He said in a statement the civil- ian agencies carried 1,230,972 workers in April, 6,047 more than in March. But he said the number of employees in the military agen- cies dropped by 3,270 to an April total of 1,164,792.

Byrd said the federal payroll has averaged 934 million dollars a month for the first nine months of fiscal 1937, which will end June 30. He said the March payroll totaled $918,700,000 compared with $84 million dollars in February.
